MOURNFUL MATINEE FOR NEW YORKS IN ST. LOUIS. Two-Time Walloping Sends Them Down to Sixth Piace—Brooklyns Up Keep Their Good Work and Beat Pirates Again-Chicagos and Reds Outplay Adversaries. Defeat came to the New York Nationals' yesterday in a double dose. The Cardinals put them away handlily in the first game and shut them out in the second. The New Yorks dropped to sixth place, being passed by the Bostons, although the latter lost to the Cube. The Brooklyns kept up their good work in Pittsburg and won a third straight game from the Pirates, but by a prank of decimals they slipped back to the tail end. The Cincinnatis, defeating the Philadelphas, advanced to second place, climbing over both the Quakers and Pittsburgs. The Chicagos have stuch a ong lead that for the time being at any rate there is no second. The results:

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—The Cardinals took both ends of a double header this afternoon and made it three victories out of four games in the series with New York. In the opening contest McGinnity was found for ten hits in the five innings he pitched. The fielding was none too good behind him. Then McGraw sent Maiarkey in. The result, no hits and no runs for the final three innings. Lush pitched in excellent form and was effective with men on bases. When two hits came to start the ninth McGloskey very promptly sent in Raymond and took no chances. The latter had his batters out in order.

Sales got an introduction to the League Park fans to start the second game. Both ends of the slimmest battery in either major league made good. Sales let New York down with four hits, and only once was New York able to make it interesting for the elongated southpaw. That was in the fifth inning when Bresnahan and Devlin started with singles, and every one began to predict Sales's speedy demise. The latter made Doyle foul, and trying to sacrifice Bridwell forced Devl n at second and Wiltse rolled to O'Rourke.

Wites lost the game, in the first inning. Barry opened with a single and Charles sacrificed him to second. Murray singled and Barry soored. Delehanty dropped a single just out of reach of Doyle and Murray took third, Delehanty went out stealing second and them Murray scored on a wild pitch. Kohetchy lined to Nicklin for the third out. After that Wiltse settled down and St. Louis could not hit him effectively afterward. The score:

Nothing to It After the First Mile of Bace ANNAPOLIS, May 28.—The Naval Academy ended its season by losing this afternoon to Syraouse by a length and a half in a two mile race. Syraouse covered the course in 10 minutes 28 1-5 seconds. The Navy's time was 10 minutes 34 1-5 seconds. The midshipmen were clearly outrowed. The Eyok, the Syraouse coach, formerly coached the midshipmen.

The midshipmen started at a high stroke, forty to the minute, and tried to pull the heart out of the visitors. However Syraouse, rowing two strokes less to the minute, easily held the Navy arsmen for the first mile and then took the lead, gradually increasing it until at the finish there was half a length of clear water between the boats. A quarter of a mile from the finish the midshipmen made a spurt, but Ten Eyok drove his crew ahead without effort.

BEATS TRAVERS IN METRO-

POLITAN GOLF FINAL.

Thirty-eight Holes Needed to Complete the Contest, in Which the Winner Was 6 Bown After Morning Round—Poor Con-dition of the Loser Is a Big Facter. Charles H. Seely of Wee Burn did himself Charles H. Seely of Wee Burn did himself proud by defeating Jerome 1). Travers of Montolair, the titleholder, in the final round of the Metropolitan Golf Association championship tournament at Baltusrol yesterday. The finish was as sensational as it was unexpected, for Seely after being a down at the end of the morning round squared the match on the seventeenth green, the thirty-fifth hole of the match, and won on the thirty-eighth green.

Taking it all in all, yesterday's match was one of the most unusual ever seen in a champion.

Taking it all in all, yesterday's match was one of the most unusual ever seen in a championship contest in this country. Although the outcome may have been as unexpected as it was disappointing to a majority in the gallery, too much credit cannot be given to Seely for working his way successfully through one of the strongest fields of golfers ever gathered together in the East.

This makes the third time Seely has been a finalist in the Metropolitan and his second a finalist in the Metropolitan and his second.

a finalist in the Metropolitan and his second win, the previous one being at Fox Hills in 1906. Prior to this tournament Travers had held the title for two years. He won had held the title for two years. He won in 1908 at St. Andrews and again last year at Nassau. Travers is still the national and New Jersey champion, but unless he improves his physical condition he stands a good chance to lose these as well.

It was poor condition and nothing else that brought about his downfall yesterday. He complained of feeling tired before the end of the morning round, and it was plain to every one that he was playing simply on to every one that he was playing simply on his nerve throughout the afternoon. It is part of the game, however, to play thirtypart of the game, however, to play thirty-six holes each day in tournaments, the pro-gramme usually calling for eighteen hole matches morning and afternoon with the finals at thirty-six.

Seely, on the other hand, is built on lines that would do credit to the average pro-fessional strong man, and he coluid play fifty-four holes as easily asseighteen if the occasion required.

There is also no doubt that luck was with fifty-four holes as easily asseighteen if the occasion required.

There is alse no doubt that luck was with Seely. Twice in the morning when his ball was practically buried after a skied tee shot, he was fortunate enough to be able to lift and drop back without penalty, taking a legitimate advantage of the casual water rule. With Travers it was different, as on four occasions when his ball disappeared it was in need of the tenacious sort found in Jersey.

Rarely has a larger galleay been seen than that one which followed the principals, especially in the afternoon, and as the word was passed round that Sagir was steadily closing the gap between himself and Travis, golfers abandoned their own matches and joined the ranks. The weather turned exceedingly warm and this also had its effect on the players.

After a halve in 4 st the first hole Travers secured an early advantage by winning the second, thanks to a topped drive on the part of the Connecticut crack. The latter also showed a weak short game by failing to get his 3 at the third, and as the national champion made no mistakes, another hole was added to his credit.

Seely should have won the long fourth, as his opponent sliced to a trap, but the former required three puts. An indifferent short game also cost him the eighth and ninth, so that he stood 4 down at the turn as they halved the ninth in 3. Travers went out on 38 to 48 for Seely.

Up to this point Seely's work had been a disappointment. His short game especially was nothing in comparison with the dieadly hitting that proved the undoing of Walter J. Travis the day before. On the other hand, Travis had been going along amouthly, and it looked as if he was right at the top of his game. He had good direction and he rarely missed a put without reason.

The play on the tenth hole is well worth recording as it was productive of some exceptional golf. After a pulled drive into trouble Travers made a great recovery to the island green only to find his ball completely buried. All he could see was a hôle in the
